Bihar universities to go paperless soon

PATNA: With the ever-increasing pace of automation the universities in Bihar are likely to become paperless soon. Most of the works of different institutions of higher education are being carried out digitally, leaving little space for manual work. Almost all the universities of the state have either already implemented the University

Management Information System (UMIS) or are in process of implementing it at the earliest. Consequently, most works related to admission and examinations are being performed digitally. Patna University vice-chancellor Girish Kumar Chaudhary said all the admissions to the undergraduate and postgraduate courses of the university have been transacted online for the last two to three years. Right from submission of applications for admission to publication of merit list and submission of admission fees, everything is online.

Furthermore, the VC said all examination works, including filling up of examination forms and deposition of examination fees and downloading of admit cards have become automated. The tabulation of marks and publication of results have also been automated. Other works of the PU office like registration of students, transmission of important messages to the heads of departments and principals of colleges, payment of monthly salaries to teachers and non-teaching staff and maintaining other records of the university have also gone online, he said.
